

pull the plug on atheism

Atheism's Best Kept Secret

An atheist is someone who believes that nothing made everything. He will of course deny that because it's an intellectual embarrassment, but if I say that I don't believe that a builder built my house, then I am left with the insanity of believing that nothing built it. It just happened.

Cornell University believes that nothing created everything. They said, "... space and time both started at the Big Bang and therefore there was nothing before it." [1] Scienceline.org said, "Some physicists believe our universe was created by colliding with another, but Kaku [a theoretical physicist at City University of New York] says it also may have sprung from nothing . . ."

Imagine if I said that my latest book came from nothing. The text fell together in a coherent order, the page numbers fell in numerical order, it bound itself, the cover designed itself, and then out of nowhere the title, You Can Lead an Atheist to Evidence, But You Can't Make Him Think appeared. There was no author, no printer, and no publisher. What sort of crazy person would you think I was if I said that nothing created the book? Why then would anyone give any credibility to an atheist? So the next time you hear the word "atheist" and the word "intelligent" in the same sentence, you will know better.

[1] <http://curious.astro.cornell.edu/question.php?number=364>

~ Ray Comfort

Please consider sending this short article to someone you know, and help to pull the plug on the rising tide of atheism.

pulltheplugonatheism.com